Howell Method of Duplicate Whist for Pairs.

Principles of the Game.

THE HOWELL METHOD of duplicate whist for pairs possesses this advantage over the "Mitchell system," or "compass whist"—that while, under the Mitchell system, each pair meets at the table only one-half of the contesting pairs, by the Howell method each pair meets every other pair. Each pair also over-plays certain hands with every other pair, which is not the case at the "compass" game. The new method is the invention of Mr. E. C. Howell, of Boston, Mass., although some of the schedules on which the method is based appear to have been discovered independently by other whist mathematicians.

Until the preparation of the indicating cards that are now presented to the whist world, the Howell method was in vogue in only a few clubs, chiefly the American Whist Club, of Boston, where it was used in the regular pair tournaments for over two years. It is hoped that these indicating cards, with the score-sheets and explanations accompanying them, will make the practice of the new game perfectly simple and easy for all players, whether they have been accustomed to duplicate whist or not.

In this explanatory matter it is not necessary to give all the schedules, since they are really contained in the indicating cards. An analysis of one of the schedules will suffice to show the principles underlying them all. Take that for eight pairs: At Table 1, Pair No. 8 sits north and south, and Pair No. 1 east and west at the outset; at Table 2, Pair No. 6 north and south, and Pair No. 3 east and west; at Table 3, Pair No. 7 north and south, and Pair No. 2 east and west; at Table 4, Pair No. 4 north and south, and Pair No. 5 east and west. On successive rounds, Pair No. 8 retains its original position, while the other pairs follow one another in regular numerical order: that is, when the players change their seats at the conclusion of a round, Pair No. 2 takes the place vacated by Pair No. 1; Pair No. 3 takes the place vacated by Pair No. 2, and so on all around, Pair No. 1 taking the place vacated by Pair No. 7. This rule for changes being observed, the positions of the players on the several rounds are:

	N. & S. E. & W.	N. & S. E. & W.	N. & S. E. & W.	N. & S. E. & W.
First Round, Pairs Nos. ....	8 vs. 1	6 vs. 3	7 vs. 2	4 vs. 5
Second " " " .....	8 vs. 2	7 vs. 4	1 vs. 3	5 vs. 6
Third " " " .....	8 vs. 3	1 vs. 5	2 vs. 4	6 vs. 7
Fourth " " " .....	8 vs. 4	2 vs. 6	3 vs. 5	7 vs. 1
Fifth " " " .....	8 vs. 5	3 vs. 7	4 vs. 6	1 vs. 2
Sixth " " " .....	8 vs. 6	4 vs. 1	5 vs. 7	2 vs. 3
Seventh " " " .....	8 vs. 7	5 vs. 2	6 vs. 1	3 vs. 4

Now, on the first round, Deal No. 1 is played at Table 1 by Pairs Nos. 8 and 1; Deal No. 4 at Table 2 by Pairs Nos. 6 and 3; Deal No. 6 at Table 3 by Pairs Nos. 7 and 2; Deal No. 7 at Table 4 by Pairs Nos. 4 and 5. After the first round the deals are played in regular numerical order at the several tables, the numbers running up to 7 and then starting at 1 again. For instance, at Table 2, Deal No. 4 is played on the first round, No. 5 on the second, No. 6 on the third, No. 7 on the fourth, No. 1 on the fifth, No. 2 on the sixth, No. 3 on the seventh and last. Thus every deal is played once at every table.

Further examination of the schedule shows that Deal No. 1, for example, is played on the first round by Pairs Nos. 8 and 1 at Table 1; on the fifth round by Pairs Nos. 3 and 7 at Table 2; on the third round by Pairs Nos. 2 and 4 at Table 3; on the second round by Pairs Nos. 5 and 6 at Table 4. That is, Deal No. 1 is played by all the pairs on different rounds. The same thing is true of every deal. It is this over-play of the deals on different rounds that constitutes the main peculiarity and value of the schedules, and renders it possible to oppose and compare all the players with a number of deals equal to the number of rounds and one less than the number of pairs.

A moment's scrutiny of the schedule will make it clear that every pair meets every other pair just once. Another result, however, still more important than this, is obtained by the method of arrangement of players and deals, namely : that every pair over-plays an equal number of hands with every other pair. The given schedule may be transposed so as to appear thus :

Deal No. 1 is played by Pairs Nos.	8 vs. 1	3 vs. 7	2 vs. 4	5 vs. 6
“ 2 “ “ “	8 vs. 2	4 vs. 1	3 vs. 5	6 vs. 7
“ 3 “ “ “	8 vs. 3	5 vs. 2	4 vs. 6	7 vs. 1
“ 4 “ “ “	8 vs. 4	6 vs. 3	5 vs. 7	1 vs. 2
“ 5 “ “ “	8 vs. 5	7 vs. 4	6 vs. 1	2 vs. 3
“ 6 “ “ “	8 vs. 6	1 vs. 5	7 vs. 2	3 vs. 4
“ 7 “ “ “	8 vs. 7	2 vs. 6	1 vs. 3	4 vs. 5

Hence, Pair No. 8 over-plays the north and south hands of Deals Nos. 4, 6 and 7 with Pair No. 1; Deals Nos. 1, 5 and 7 with Pair No. 2, and so on, or three deals with every other pair; and the same thing is true of the over-play of deals by every other couple of pairs. This arrangement compares the play of pairs. It is sometimes called the “opposition” of players, and is an element of prime importance in multi-table duplicate whist that is frequently overlooked by schedule makers. In this respect the present schedules are as nearly as possible perfect.

The indicating cards are supplied for any number of pairs from four to thirty. For more than thirty pairs the number of deals required is unwieldy; while, indeed, very few clubs will ever have so large an attendance in a duplicate game.

The method does not, in strictness, apply in cases of less than eight pairs, but adaptations of the method have been devised for four, five and six pairs.

How to Play the Game.

A responsible person, who thoroughly understands the method of play, should be in charge of every game of duplicate, under this or any other system. He and his partner should occupy the stationary positions at Table 1. The other pairs may seat themselves originally wherever they will. After all are seated, and the number of tables and pairs is known, the proper set of indicating cards is to be distributed, one being laid on each table, with the bottom of the card turned toward the north. If there is an odd number of pairs, the cards for the next higher even number of pairs must be used. Thus, for nineteen pairs, use the cards for twenty pairs. In this case, the twentieth pair must be considered "dummy;" that is, the position of Pair No. 20 at Table 1 is left vacant, and the various other pairs, as they come up to this table on successive rounds, sit out without playing for one round each. In this case, too, the director of the game and his partner must waive their privilege of being Pair No. 20, and must seat themselves somewhere else than north and south at Table 1. In other respects the game goes on with an odd number of pairs exactly as though there were the full even number present and competing, except that the deal at Table 1 on every round is not played, but is moved after every round according to the directions on the indicating card, by the players who sit out at that table.

The players being seated and the indicating cards distributed, the director of the game next distributes the duplicate whist trays according to the numbers for "original deals" found on each indicating card. Thus: for eight pairs, trays Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are placed at Table 1; Nos. 4 and 5 at Table 2; No. 6 at Table 3; No. 7 at Table 4. The pairs take their numbers from the indicating cards, and must remember them throughout the game. The director, too, should make a list of the players, by names and numbers, before beginning play. To get their numbers, the players merely look at the upper lines on the indicating cards, showing "original pairs." Thus: for eight pairs, the players who find themselves originally at Table 1, east and west, are Pair No. 1; those at Table 2, north and south, are Pair No. 6, and so on. All the information required by the players, on this and every other round, is printed on the indicating cards. Every player should make himself acquainted with their arrangement, and there need be no confusion nor error at any stage of the game as to the proper position of any pair, or as to the deal that ought to be played.

The players and indicating cards and trays being now in place—the indicating cards preferably in the middle of the table, with the trays on top of them—one deal is played at each table, and this constitutes the first round. If there are more deals than one at a table, the lowest numbered only is played. Thus: originally (in the schedule for eight pairs) Deals Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are at Table 1, but only No. 1 is played. On the next round Deals Nos. 2, 3 and 4 are at this table, and No. 2 is played, and so on. When the highest numbered deal of all is at a table, with the lowest numbered and perhaps others, the highest numbered is played first, since it comes first in rotary order. For instance: with eight pairs, on the sixth round, Deals Nos. 6, 7 and 1 are found at Table 1; then No. 6 is played. On the seventh round, at the same table, the deals are Nos. 7, 1 and 2—play No. 7. All the players should know and remember this peculiarity of the rotation of deals, but in all cases they should examine the schedule on the indicating card before them at the beginning of every round, to see which deal they ought to play, and whether the pairs are seated properly at their table.

After the first round, the trays just played are moved up to the next lower numbered table, going in the usual rotary order from Table 1 to the last. To facilitate the movement of trays, the tables should be arranged as nearly as possible in a circle. It devolves on the north player at each table to move the tray after each round. Instructions about doing this are printed on his side of the indicating card. In moving the tray he should not only take it promptly to the proper table, but should place it under the tray or trays that he finds there, if there are any. This leaves on top the tray next to be played, and simplifies matters for all the players.

Whither each player should go after each round he will find printed in large type on the proper side of his indicating card. Thus: at Table 1, for eight pairs, the east player finds on the indicating card—"East: Go next to Table 3, south." And so every individual player has his directions, and with the slightest amount of care can not go astray.

How to Score the Game.

How the players and trays are originally placed, how they are moved from round to round, and how they are played on each round, are told in detail by the indicating cards. How the deals are scored and the result of the game obtained, must be explained separately. For this purpose only the "travelling" score-slip is used. One of these goes with every deal, and takes the place of the trump-slip. It is folded and placed with the dealer's cards in his compartment of the tray, so that the deal number and the entry of the trump-card at the top of the slip are exposed.

The travelling score must not be examined by the players before playing the given deal, but the slip must be kept in the tray until the play of the deal is over. Then it is taken out and unfolded, and, before the cards are returned to the tray, the score of each pair must be entered, opposite the proper pair number and in the proper column, N. & S. or E. & W. Great care in these particulars is necessary. An incorrect entering of the score, opposite the wrong pair number or in the wrong column, makes trouble, and is really the only error that does ever make trouble, at this style of play. With the exercise of care and deliberation such errors need not occur. The players should not be hurried. The director of the game, before telling the players to make the changes after every round—which is the most important part of his duty—should see that every deal is completed and scored, and should give the players plenty of time to do this properly. After the deal is recorded, and the score-slip is refolded and returned to the tray, the players wait until they get word from the director, and until then they should remain quiet, both physically and vocally. Unnecessary walking about or talking between rounds disturbs the other players and increases liability to error in scoring.

At the conclusion of the game, the travelling score-slips are collected and posted by the director and his assistants.

There are two different systems of scoring: the first takes account of the number of tricks won as compared with the average; the second considers each hand played as a match and takes account of the number of matches won.

The advantage of the first system is that it gives a chance for brilliant individual play; the disadvantage is that the result is too often determined by luck. Thus this system is often preferred by both the best players and the poorest.

The advantage of the second system is that the safest and most careful play counts most, and that luck affects the result in only one or two deals, seldom in the total; the disadvantage is that it offers no inducement for coups or brilliant play. Hence, this system is usually preferred by the middle class—the great majority of good players.

There are several methods of scoring under each system from which have been selected the two which have proved to be at once both the fairest and the easiest. The first is called

THE MULTIPLE SYSTEM.

Use travelling score-slips containing four columns for entries; the first for N.-S. scores, the second headed "O. K." (in which each pair may check with its own number the adversaries' scoring as correct),

Deal No. 1.
Trump—ACE OF SPADES.
The score of both pairs should be recorded by the dealer or his partner and approved by an opponent.
PAIR NO.	SCORE N. & S.	O. K.	SCORE E. & W.	+ OR —
1	..	✓1	10	+10
2	6	✓4	..	+ 2
3	7	✓7	..	+ 6
4	..	✓4	7	— 2
5	6	✓6	..	+ 2
6	..	✓6	7	— 2
7	..	✓7	6	— 6
8	3	✓1	..	—10
	22		30	+20

the third for E.-W. scores, and the fourth headed "+ or —" for the final posting. When the deals have all been played, take the score-slips from the trays and post as follows: Add the N.-S. scores and the E.-W. scores separately and write the sums at the foot of the respective columns. Multiply each N.-S. score by the number of N.-S. scores in the N.-S. column and find the difference between the product and the N.-S. aggregate, and write this difference opposite the pair number in the "+ or —" column, according as the product is greater or less than the aggregate. Do the same with the E.-W. column.

 A score-slip thus posted has this appearance.

The sum of the scores of the N.-S. column is 22 and of the E.-W. column is 30. Pair No. 1 having scored 10 E. & W., multiply 10 by 4, which is the number of pairs scoring E. & W. The result is 40, which is ten more than 30, the aggregate E.-W. score; therefore, the difference (10) must be written in the "+ or —" column, opposite Pair No. 1, as + 10. Pair No. 2 having scored 6 N. & S., multiply 6 by 4. The result is 24, or two more than 22, the aggregate N.-S. score; therefore + 2 must be written in the "+ or -" column opposite Pair No. 2. Pair No. 3, having scored 7 N. & S., multiply 7 by 4. The result is 28, or six more than 22; therefore + 6 must be written in the "+ or -" column opposite Pair No. 3. Pair No. 4, having scored 7 E. & W., multiply 7 by 4. The result is 28, or two less than 30, the aggregate E.-W. score; therefore - 2 must be written in the "+ or -" column opposite Pair No. 4. Find the others in the same way, all multiplications and subtractions being easily performed mentally. If the work is correct, the plus and minus scores in each column must balance.

Having posted each of the travelling score-slips in the same way, transfer the pluses and minuses to a final score-sheet or record.

Below are given the remaining six score-slips of an eight-pair game:

Deal No. 2.

The final score-sheet should be ruled as follows: First, a broad column for pair names; second, a narrow column for pair numbers; third, a narrow column for rank; fourth, a double column for corrected plus and minus scores; fifth, a double column for net plus and minus scores; sixth, a double column for gross plus and minus scores; and seventh, as many columns as there are score-slips for the results of the respective deals. The seven score-slips given, when posted by this method and tabulated, would give the following score-sheet:

PAIR NAMES	PAIR No.	RANK	CORRECTED		NET		GROSS		DEALS
			+	-	+	-	+	-	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
.....	1	1	5	..	20	..	27	7	+10	-2	0	+6	+11	-2	-3
.....	2	4	2	..	8	..	14	6	+2	+2	0	-6	+3	+6	+1
.....	3	2	4	..	16	..	23	7	+6	+6	-4	+6	-3	+2	+3
.....	4	5	..	$\frac{1}{2}$	..	2	9	11	-2	+2	-4	+2	+5	-2	-3
.....	5	3	3	..	12	..	18	6	+2	-6	0	+2	+9	+2	+3
.....	6	8	..	7	..	28	4	32	-2	-6	+4	-6	-11	-6	-1
.....	7	7	..	$4\frac{1}{2}$	..	18	6	24	-6	+6	0	-2	-5	-6	-5
.....	8	6	..	2	..	8	15	23	-10	-2	+4	-2	-9	+6	+5
			14	14	56	56	116	116

The two columns headed "Gross" are obtained by adding all the plus scores of each pair and all the minus scores separately, and writing these sums in the respective plus and minus columns. Thus: Pair No. 1, having a score of +10 on deal 1, of +6 on deal 4, and of +11 on deal 5, has a total of +27, which is accordingly written in the "Gross" plus column; and having a score of -2 on deal 2, -2 on deal 6, and -3 on deal 7, has a total of -7, which is written in the "Gross" minus column.

The difference between the gross plus, 27, and the gross minus, 7, is +20, which is accordingly written in the "Net" plus column. And this net plus of 20 is divided by 4, the original multiplier of the score-slips to correct that multiplication, and this gives a final "Corrected" score of +5. Each pair score is treated in the same way. The correctness of the work should be tested at every step, for the sums of the plus and minus scores in each vertical column should always balance. The pair having the largest plus score wins.

Though apparently somewhat complicated, the "Multiple" system is, in reality, very easy to use, unless the number of tables exceeds twelve, and even then it is merely a question of whether the scorer's knowledge of the multiplication tables is sufficient to enable him to multiply mentally by 13 or 14 or 15. (For these higher numbers, it is a good plan to use a table of multiples, which can, of course, be readily prepared and kept before the scorers during the making up of their slips.)

The other system of scoring is

THE MATCH SYSTEM.

By this system the travelling score-slips will be the same as under the "Multiple" system, excepting that the last column is headed "Points" instead of "+ or —." But the method of posting is radically different. To post, add separately the N.-S. and E.-W. columns on each score-slip, and divide these sums by the number of scores in each column. If the quotient contains a fraction differing from a whole number by not more than one-fourth, take the nearest whole number as the quotient. If the quotient is a mixed number greater than one-fourth and less than three-fourths, record the fraction as one-half, for uniformity. In the column headed "Points" record each pair making exactly the average as 2, each pair making one or more tricks in excess of the average as 4, and each pair making one or more tricks less than the average as 0.

But when the average, recorded as above stated, contains the fraction one-half, it is evident that no pair can score that average, hence no 2 can appear on a score-slip whose average contains a fraction. But suppose that the N.-S. average is  $5\frac{1}{2}$  and the E.-W. average  $7\frac{1}{2}$ . Now  $5\frac{1}{2}$  is just as near to 5 as it is to 6, and  $7\frac{1}{2}$  is just as near to 8 as it is to 7, consequently the number next below a fractional average may be considered as entering partly into that average and should not be counted as an entire loss, while the number next higher also partakes of the average and should not be counted as a clear gain. Therefore, if the N.-S. average be  $5\frac{1}{2}$ , no pair can attain it, but the pair scoring 6 scores more than the average, or 3, and the pair scoring 5 scores less than the average, or 1. And in the E.-W. scores the pair scoring 8 scores more than the average, or 3, while the pair scoring 7 scores less than the average, or 1.

Hence, we see that when the average contains a fraction, the number 2 can not appear in the "Points" column, but is replaced by 3 or 1, and that, when the average is a whole number, the numbers 3 and 1 can not appear in the "Points" column.

Applying these directions to the score-slip of Deal No. 1, already given under the "Multiple" system, we obtain the following :

Deal No. 1.
Trump—ACE OF SPADES.
The score of both pairs should be recorded by the dealer or his partner and approved by an opponent.
PAIR NO.	SCORE N. & S.	O. K.	SCORE E. & W.	POINTS
1	..	✓1	10	4
2	6	✓4	..	3
3	7	✓7	..	4
4	..	✓4	7	1
5	6	✓6	..	3
6	..	✓6	7	1
7	..	✓7	6	0
8	3	✓1	..	0
	5½		7½	16

The N.-S. average is just 5½ and the E.-W. just 7½. Pair No. 1, having a score of 10, have a clear win above the average, 7½, and receive the highest credit, 4. They would have received just the same had their score been 9. Pair No. 2, having a score of 6, are just above the average of 5½, and receive 3. Pair No. 3, having a score of 7, are clear above the average of 5½, and receive 4. Pair No. 4, having a score of 7, are just below the average of 7½, and receive 1. In the same way Pair No. 5 receive 3, and Pair No. 6 receive 1, while Pair No. 7, having a score of 6, are clear below the average of 7½, and receive 0, and Pair No. 8, having a score of 3, are clear below the average of 5½, and receive 0.

The "Points" column is now added, and if the sum is twice the number of pairs playing, the work is presumably correct.

The seven score-slips, when posted by this method and tabulated, would give the following score-sheet:

PAIR NAMES	PAIR NO.	RANK	NET POINTS	TOTAL POINTS	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
.....	1	4	+ 2	16	4	1	2	4	4	1	0
.....	2	3	+ 4	18	3	3	2	0	4	4	2
.....	3	1+	+ 5	19	4	4	0	4	0	3	4

After transferring the points from the score-slips to the score-sheet, add the points of each pair and write the sum in the "Total" column. This column of totals should then be added and the sum divided by the number of pairs playing. The quotient will be the average points of each pair, which should be twice the number of deals played. Compare the total points of each pair, as recorded in the column of "Totals," with the average gain and write the difference in the "Net Points" column, writing it + when it exceeds the average, and — when it is less than the average, and 0 when it is the same as the average. The result will be the net points or final score of each pair. Should there be an odd number of pairs, each pair should receive 2 (the average score of each deal) for the deal they do not play, or, if preferred, a cross can be marked on the score-sheet for the deal not played, and no account need be taken of it.

A comparison of the two final score-sheets is interesting as showing how the different points emphasized by each system affect the result. By the "Multiple" system Pair No. 1 scores 5 which is a clear win, due mainly to the large scores made on deals 1 and 5. By the "Match" system these large scores do not count excessively, and the fact that they have only three plus scores, that is, have won only three matches, while Pair No. 3 have won four, loses them the first place. Again: by the "Multiple" method Pair No. 1 makes a plus score on only three deals, while Pairs No. 2, No. 3 and No. 5 make plus scores on five deals each. By the "Match" system this is corrected and Pairs No. 2, No. 3 and No. 5 each outrank Pair No. 1.

By the "Match" system Pairs No. 3 and No. 5 are tied, yet with quite different scores. So, although Pair No. 3 wins four matches outright, one more than Pair No. 5, yet they also lose outright one more match than Pair No. 5.

There are many other points of comparison and contrast well worthy of consideration, which will suggest themselves to any one studying the two systems, and very little study will convince any one that both methods are easy to acquire, and are fair and satisfactory in application.

The posting of the scores, entry on the final score-sheet, and computation of averages, should occupy only fifteen or twenty minutes for a game of twenty-four deals, or thereabouts. The final reckoning is an interesting process for all the players. If a blackboard be used, they gather around it and intently watch the figures as they are transferred from the travelling score-sheets, and the discussion of each pair's chance for the top score infuses an element of excitement into the game that maintains the attention of the contestants until the winners are decided.

Other Observations.

If the number of pairs is odd, and each pair consequently skips the deal that it would naturally play at Table 1, there are blanks on the score-sheets, but they do not affect the method of scoring in the least.

If the number of pairs is small—say from eight to fourteen—it will be necessary to repeat the schedules once or twice in order to get a sufficient number of deals. Thus: with eight pairs, the schedule is played through with seven deals, and after this, without waiting to post the scores, another set may be played, and another after that, if desired. There would then be three Deals Nos. 1, three Nos. 2, etc. Or, if the club has several sets of trays, it may use them simultaneously, placing three Nos. 1, three Nos. 2, and three Nos. 3 at Table 1; three Nos. 4 and three Nos. 5 at Table 2; three Nos. 6 at Table 3, and three Nos. 7 at Table 4. All three deals of the same number would then be played on one round, before changing, and, of course, would be moved together.

Where but one set of trays is available, or if it is desired to equalize the leads, the trays may be laid out in sets, in which the lowest numbered tray is the one called for by the schedule and the others differ from it by the highest number used in the schedule, or a multiple of that number. For instance, in the eight-pair schedule, if sets of four are desired, set one would comprise trays 1, 8, 15, 22; set two, trays 2, 9, 16, 23; set three, trays 3, 10, 17, 24, etc. When sets of trays are used as above, it is preferable to place only one set of trays at a time on the respective tables. The sets not in play should be kept on an extra table in the center of the room, and the trays changed at each round by the director and his appointed assistants.

Much time is saved by playing the trays in sets instead of repeating the schedule several times; but, if the scorer is not playing, the result can be posted quicker if the latter method is employed.

In all cases the proper position of the indicating cards—North toward the north, East toward the east, South toward the south, West toward the west—must be retained with the utmost care. It is suggested that during the play of a game each indicating card be fixed to the table, in its proper position, by means of a thumb tack. But if this be not done, it will answer the same purpose, if every pair take it upon themselves, before they begin to play each deal, to be sure that the red arrow on the card points towards the North.

How to Score at Congresses and Tournaments.

The travelling-slip ordinarily used in the Howell Method has the disadvantage that nothing can be done towards determining the final result until all the deals have been played. Some object to this form of score-slip, also, on the ground that no one should know what any one else has made on a deal until the match is over.

Whenever an official scorer is employed, as at congresses and tournaments, who can tabulate the result of each deal, round by round, as soon as played, the work can be very much facilitated by using the Tormey, or deal-slips, instead of the travelling-slips. The scoring at the tables is done exactly as in the Mitchell system, and the slips are collected at the close of each round and taken to the official scorer, who then records them according to a method suggested by Mr. Walter H. Barney.

The seven deals already given are tabulated below by this method.

Each deal is given a double column—one for the N.-S. scores and one for the E.-W. scores. As soon as these have all been recorded, the scorer adds the N.-S. and E.-W. scores of each deal separately: e. g., in Deal 1 the N.-S. scores amount to 22 and the E.-W. to 30. He next finds the difference between these two sums, which, in this case, is 8. This excess of the E.-W. scores over the N.-S. scores must be equated as follows: Divide the excess by the number of tables in play (not counting a bye-table, when one is used)—i. e., in the example given, by 4, which gives the quotient 2. Record this quotient in colored ink or pencil opposite those pairs which are in the column having the lower total.

In Deal 1 this would be opposite the scores of the N.-S. pairs.

In the same way equate each deal. In case the sums of the N.-S. and E.-W. columns are the same, there are no corrections. In case the quotient, obtained by dividing the difference by the number of tables in play, contains a fraction, write the numerator above and at the right of the whole number, omitting the common denominator.

Thus, the excess of the N.-S. scores over the E.-W. scores in Deal 5 is 14, which, divided by 4, gives  $3\frac{3}{4}$ , which should be written as  $3^2$  opposite the score of each E.-W. pair.

Having thus equated the scores of every deal, we find the total score of each pair by adding in each horizontal line the scores actually made by the pair, together with such corrections as have been made. These totals should be added together and divided by the total number of pairs playing and an average thus obtained, just as in the Mitchell method. In the example given the sum is 448, which, divided by 8, gives an average of 56.

Finally, compare each pair's total with this average score, and the difference will be the gain or loss. The horizontal lines below explain themselves and serve as so many different checks on the work.

The reason of these corrections will be apparent, if a few examples are carefully considered. Take a piano-hand, say, with a score of 10 N.-S. and 3 E.-W.; evidently the E.-W. pairs have played the deal just as well as have the N.-S. pairs, and should have, accordingly, as good a score. By adding the correction of 7 each pair receives the score of 10, and can be compared directly on this deal.

Again, suppose two N.-S. pairs make 7 and two E.-W. pairs, also, make 7, giving a total of 26 N.-S. and the same E.-W. Evidently these scores can be compared without correction, since the 7's in each case are  $\frac{1}{2}$  above the average, and the 6's in each case are  $\frac{1}{2}$  below the average.

Again, suppose one N.-S. pair makes 7 and the other three make 6 each. Of course, three E.-W. pairs make 7 each and one makes 6. On the N.-S. the average is  $6\frac{1}{4}$ , and those who make 6 are minus  $\frac{1}{4}$ , while the pair that makes 7 is plus  $\frac{3}{4}$ . The E.-W. average, however, is  $6\frac{3}{4}$  and the pair making 6 is minus  $\frac{3}{4}$ , while those making 7 are each plus  $\frac{1}{4}$ . Evidently the 6 N.-S. is  $\frac{1}{2}$  a point better than the 6 E.-W. So, also, the 7 N.-S. is  $\frac{1}{2}$  point better than the 7's E.-W. Hence, to compare these scores with each other on a fair basis, each N.-S. score should have added to it  $\frac{1}{2}$ . The corrected score will then be the same distance from the average both for the N.-S. pairs and for the E.-W. pairs.

In a similar manner the correctness of the result can be shown in each and all of the deals given in the table.
